

Diabetes and Oral Health

There is growing acceptance among medical professionals that diabetes is associated with increased occurrence and progression of periodontitis, also known as periodontal or gum disease. Routine dental visits and good oral hygiene habits can help diabetic patients improve their overall health, including other chronic conditions often present with diabetes.

If you are one of the nearly 26 million Americans with diabetes, talk to your dental provider to be sure you are doing everything possible to achieve your best oral health; and tell your medical providers if you have been diagnosed with periodontal disease.

Contact Kevin Daigle at NHGA at 603-669-9333 to discuss dental benefits for you and your employees.
